

Analyse, “God opposes evil. Faith says our evil does opposes God and wants him dead? Evil is that which tries to be the opposite of God and independent of the one you cannot be independent of. Maybe this hostility understanding is wrong. Maybe it just wants to be an alternative law to God’s law?”

If you say there are no real moral values and that justice, love and compassion are just preferences and opinions then you are putting value on this nihilism. So you have a moral value after all. You are forced to have moral values. Deny them and you end up with alternative ones.

We see then that religion by defining sin as rejecting God is slandering sinners and hating them by saying they will go to Hell for their sin unless they repent. Raging and cursing at a person to repent is failing to get them sucked in by your religious agenda so the gentleness and love of those who call on you to repent is manipulative. It is hate simmering.
